Students

I learned that you shouldn’t be scared if you are going through puberty because it’s going to happen anyway and it’s just means that you are growing up.

6th grade student, Hillview Middle School, Menlo Park

I learned ways to manage depression.

7th grade student, Tierra Linda Middle School, San Carlos

I learned that you don’t have to be cool and bad to be like others, just be yourself!

7th grade student, Ley Va Middle School, San Jose

I learned about resisting peer pressure.

8th grade student, Will Rogers Middle School, Fair Oaks

I learned that puberty does not have to be scary, it’s just normal.

6th grade student, Isleton Elementary, Isleton

Educators

The information regarding body changes and depression seemed the most valuable for our students. Excellent. Very age appropriate and relevant.

7th grade teacher, Will Rogers Middle School, Fair Oaks

So much puberty education is nerdy, but this was something the kids thought was cool!

School District nurse, Paul Revere Middle School, San Francisco

The performance was exciting and real. Educational and inspirational.

6th grade teacher, West Fresno Middle School, Fresno

The most relevant issues in the show for our students were the abstinence and suicide prevention messages.

Teacher, Delta Vista Middle School, Oakley

Parents

The show was well done both in content and in acting. It helped open the door to more discussion between my daughter and myself.

Los Cerros Middle School, San Ramon

I felt that the material was treated with seriousness, yet presented in a way that the students could relate. I found the humor tasteful, and probably necessary in keeping the kids engaged. The performance was fun, engaging, and informative.

Harvest Middle School, Napa
